

I am outraged that that this great country is so easily manipulated by big business to do what they want it to. The government might as well step down and just allow whoever has the most money to step up and run things the way see fit, and stop this charade of voting and lawmaking. If XM is forced to stop offering what its customers want why dont you stop Sears from selling any kind of tools, or WalMart from selling any kind of food and limit them to other merchandise. Then you can just pass some more laws limiting freedom outright and declare big business marshall law forcing everyone to buy from only the largest and richest companies. When is this country going to be true to its heritage and stop this nonsense of allowing anyone who opposes something else to regulate it to death.
